PRESENTING CLINICAL SIGNS

5 videos were submitted for this patient.

- Just checking ureter, dog is urinating but only small amounts

LIMITED ULTRASONOGRAPHIC EXAMINATION

A persistent isoechoic structure was noted at the level of the ureteral papilla measuring 2.4 cm. The bladder was fully repleted at the time of the sonogram. This may represent a mass or ureterocele. The position of the structure would act as a check valve during urination. The bladder at full repletion is likely allowing urination, however, at mid repletion, the mass/structure would obstruct the urinary outflow.

ULTRASONOGRAPHIC FINDINGS

- Structure/mass at the level of the ureteral papilla.
- Fully repleted bladder.

INTERPRETATION OF THE FINDINGS & FURTHER RECOMMENDATIONS

Either surgical intervention or CT with contrast is indicated for surgical planning, however, given the condition of the kidneys, the prognosis long term is guarded. Recommend ensuring azotemia is under control prior to any surgical intervention, yet the PU/PD is related to the structure in the dorsal trigone.
